Description

The ruby client versions with the 3.0.0rc2.dev.* labels are considered as earlier than 3.0.0rc2 versioned releases.

it appears that the ruby gem tools, bundler, et al, consider the "dev" labels as being older when in fact the "3.0.0rc2" labelled gems are older.

You can verify by opening an irb console:

irb(main):010:0> Gem::Version.new("3.0.0rc2") > Gem::Version.new("3.0.0rc2.dev.1559765173")
=> true

When a gem version is not specified in a Gemfile or in a .gemspec file, the default version installed and used will be the latest available, in this case the version labelled "3..0.0rc2".

Revision 930bf2af - 06/17/2019 12:49 PM - ttereshc

Don't add .dev release part of the version

It should be done by Pulp 3 plugins themselves.
Their master branch should contain .dev release segment
in the version identifier of the upcoming release.

Revision 26f8233d - 06/17/2019 08:15 PM - ttereshc

Set version to .dev for the master branch

A correct version would be shown for installations from the master branch.
Bindings will be generated with a proper version as well.
