| Problem   |                         |                        |                         |
| Currently the pulpcore.app.models.progress module provides three objects:  |                         |                        |                         |
| ProgressReportProgressBarProgressSpinner   |                         |                        |                         |
| These are confusing for plugin users and should be combined.   |                         |                        |                         |
| Solution  |                         |                        |                         |
| Delete ProgressBar and ProgressSpinner, and consolidate them into a single model. In the database they are already a single model since ProgressBar and ProgressSpinner are proxy models for ProgressReport. |                         |                        |                         |
| This will be a plugin API breaking change and needs to be advertised to pulp-dev and also come with a fix for pulp_file.   |                         |                        |                         |
