Description

Description of problem: different repos can have the same relative-url

Version-Release number of selected component (if applicable): 2.4.1

How reproducible: Every time

Steps to Reproduce:

1. Create repo with --relative-url
2. create second repo with same relative-url
3. publish both repos

Actual results:

repo that is published last is the one published at the relative url

Expected results:

Checking would prevent setting a relative url that already exists

This was solved by the PR for BZ1079511, but is not marked as a duplicate because this was a different problem caused by the same code.

rpm -qa pulp-server
```

```
pulp-server-2.6.0-0.2.beta.el6.noarch
```

pulp-admin rpm repo create --repo-id repo1 --relative-url repo --feed
https://repos.fedorapeople.org/repos/pulp/pulp/demo_repos/zoo/horse-0.22-2.noarch.rpm

Successfully created repository [repo1]

pulp-admin rpm repo create --repo-id repo2 --relative-url repo --feed
https://repos.fedorapeople.org/repos/pulp/pulp/demo_repos/zoo/zebra-0.1-2.noarch.rpm

The server indicated one or more values were incorrect. The server provided the following error message:

Relative URL [repo] for repository [repo2] conflicts with existing relative
URL [repo] for repository [repo1]

More information can be found in the client log file `~/pulp/admin.log`.
