Description
Description of problem: /etc/httpd/conf.d/pulp.conf sets mod_ssl's SSLCACertificateFile directive. This directive is also defined in /etc/httpd/conf.d/ssl.conf, and is inappropriate for Pulp to claim in our pulp.conf namespace. Pulp does this so that it can use auto-generated client certificates with the /login/ call. Pulp relies on httpd to check client certificates against the CA defined in this directive.  We should change the /login/ call to work differently (i.e., not rely on a CA) and stop overriding this setting in our config file.  Version-Release number of selected component (if applicable): 2.4.0-1  How reproducible: Every time.  Steps to Reproduce: 1. Is SSLCACertificateFile in /etc/httpd/conf.d/pulp.conf?  Actual results: Yes.  Expected results: No.  + This bug was cloned from Bugzilla Bug #1165407 +
