

Nectar - Story #67

As a developer, nectar's threaded downloader can process session.proxies auth information correctly without having to update session.auth manually.

Description

We have a little bit of code duplication and redundancy in the `_add_proxy` function of threaded downloader. This was required as python-requests 2.0.0 had a bug which was not passing the proxy authentication information correctly. Now that we have moved to 2.2.1, it seems to have certain bugfixes, which might let us remove this extra code and rely on session.proxies for auth information completely. We do need to make sure that this handles situations with proxy with and without auth, with and without ssl etc. properly.
